Message of the President

2025 was, for ALER, much more than a year of results. It was a year of consolidation, affirmation and transformation.

Mayra Pereira, President of ALER

As we celebrate ten years, we also celebrate an idea that is clearer today than ever: we are stronger when we walk together. ALER was born to promote renewable energy in Portuguese-speaking countries and has become a regional platform for cooperation in energy and climate, connecting countries, institutions, companies and people around a common vision.

This year marked an important stage in the implementation of our Strategic Plan and brings us closer to the end of a mandate cycle. We do it with pride in the journey we have taken but, above all, with ambition for what comes next.

In 2025, we repositioned our brand, resumed the CPLP Energy Conference, published the 2030 Cooperation Roadmap and gave a new impetus to the Energy and Climate Weeks. More than institutional milestones, they are signs of a community that recognizes itself, shares challenges and begins to build responses together.

In Africa, this unity takes on even greater significance. For too long, the continent has been seen below its true scale — not just on maps, but also in the way its potential has been realized. The energy transition offers us the opportunity to change that narrative: to affirm the scale of our ambitions, create new economies, mobilize investment, and build solutions from our own realities.

The future of ALER is to transform cooperation into action, knowledge into opportunities and relationships into concrete impact.

Because more than connecting markets, we want to connect people, experiences and ambitions. And help build a community seen, heard and recognized in its true dimension.
